
How can the Legacy Fund best support Indian Day School Survivors, their families, and their communities?

LEGACY FUND ENGAGEMENT PROCESS

LEGACY FUND ENGAGEMENT PROCESS

This document is for Federal Indian Day Schools Survivors and their families to share their thoughts and recommendations on the implementation of the Legacy Fund.

The aim of the Legacy Fund is to support Survivors, their families, and their communities through projects and initiatives under four key themes: language and culture, healing and wellness, commemoration, and truth telling.

The input of Indian Day Survivors and their families is deeply important to us at MDSSC, as we want the Legacy Fund to be as responsive as possible, truly meeting the needs and expectations of Survivors and their families. We are seeking your input throughout Fall 2021 to better determine how the Legacy Fund should be administered and implemented.

We hope this outreach with you results in robust, meaningful, and transparent engagement in a safe, supportive way. Our goal is ensuring the highest level of representation and input from Survivors by providing multiple options and accommodations to address your needs and meet you where you are on your healing journey. Please see the “Accessibility” section below for more information.

The questions below will help guide this input, allowing us to respectfully and carefully consider every response. Responses may be submitted until March 25, 2022.

HEALTH & WELLNESS SUPPORTS

Your wellbeing is important to us, and we understand the difficult emotions that may arise with discussions relating to Indian Day Schools. If you require immediate support at any time, please contact Hope for Wellness Help Line at 1-855-242-3310 to access toll-free, 24/7 counselling and crisis intervention. These culturally-competent services are available in Cree, Inuktitut, Ojibway, French and English.

What are the key issues the Legacy Fund must address?

What do you think the goals of the Legacy Fund should be?

What types of activities, initiatives, and projects the Legacy Fund support?

What kinds of values and mandates should organizations supported by the Legacy Fund possess?

We know mental health and wellness is one of the most critical and immediate issues for Survivors.
How can the Legacy Fund best address mental health and wellness?

Are there projects, initiatives, and activities you think would be best carried out by the MDSSC itself?

How important is it that steps be taken to make the MDSSC sustainable, or to exist permanently?

Is there anything else you would like to tell us?

Thank you for taking the time to submit your responses. We deeply appreciate your input – it will help us design a framework for the administration and implementation of the Legacy Fund that directly supports Survivors and their families. The McLean Day Schools Settlement Corporation is an organization for Federal Indian Day School Survivors; we will use all input received to shape the parameters of the Legacy Fund and the future of the MDSSC.

Ensuring our outreach and engagement process is open and transparent is critical for the MDSSC. We will be posting regular summaries of the input received from Survivors, families, and others online at www.mcleandayschoolssettlementcorporation.ca

At the conclusion of our outreach and engagement work, a more fulsome report of the process, the input we received, and our next steps will be made publicly available.
